

Message from Glenn

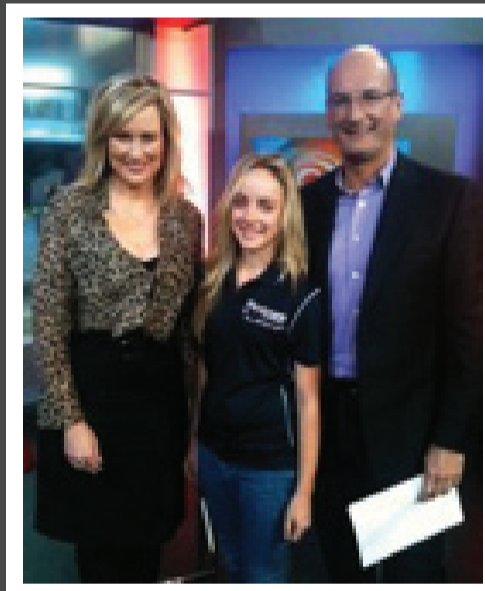

What an amazing month! It gives me great pleasure to experience not only some of the most thrilling and enthralling places in the world, but also to have the opportunity to cross paths with incredible, interesting and inspiring people. It has been a busy month for us here at Adventure Professionals with our two successful trips to Mt Kilimanjaro and the media attention surrounding Alyssa. Both expeditions were amazing journeys with remarkable groups and the Kids Helpline trip made it especially inspiring to climb for such a great cause.

With all we have coming up - our Special Forces Day, Aussie 10 trek, Everest Base Camp, Kokoda with Shane Webcke and special trips for the 70th Anniversary of the Kokoda campaign - our action-packed schedule does not look like slowing down.

Life's too short to surround yourself with people who do not add something to your life, so remember choices not chances make champions!

Cheers
Glenn Azar

Successfully climbed Mt Kilimanjaro at just 14

We are excited to congratulate and welcome home our very own Alyssa Azar who at just 14, has successfully conquered Africa's largest mountain, Mt Kilimanjaro. We would also like to announce that Alyssa has been nominated for a Pride of Australia Award in Community Spirit.

Alyssa, with her father Glenn and the rest of the Kids Helpline crew, reached the summit on July 1 - a beautiful breathtaking morning with clear skies and incredible 360 degree views. Alyssa's decision to support the Kids Helpline stemmed from her own observation of bullying, especially with the increase in social media amongst school children. The successful climb was part of a Kids Helpline fundraising expedition whereby Adventure Professionals participants helped raised over $50,000. An incredible achievement.

With her sights already set on her next goal, Mt Aconcagua - the highest mountain in South America at almost 7,000 meters compared to Mt Kilimanjaro at 5,800 meters - we have not seen the last of this young and determined teenager.

As a motivational ambassador for Adventure Professionals, Alyssa is also looking to promote school camps to encourage goal setting through physical adventures for 10 to 12 year olds.
